INAUGURATION OF GOVERNOR WALTER F. FREAR

GOVERNOR GIVEN A WELCOME

Retiring Official and Successor Both Applauded.

WALTER F. FREAR, by virtue of the signed commission of the President of the United States, and the oath administered by Chief Justice Hartwell at eleven o'clock yesterday morning, is now Governor of the Territory of Hawaii, vice George R. Carter, resigned.

The inauguration ceremonies, simple but impressive, were held in the throne room of the Capitol yesterday morning, the large hall being packed with those present to see the mantle of authority fall from the shoulders of Governor Carter and settle upon his successor. The consular corps, the members of the Governor's official family, the members of the Supreme and Circuit Court benches, the officers of the Navy, Army and Militia and many of the leading citizens of the Territory occupied chairs in the front of the hall, on the dais being Governor Carter and his successor, Secretary Mott-Smith and ex-Secretary Atkinson occupied chairs below the dais, near the Wai-wiki wall.

Promptly at half past ten o'clock, the hour named for the beginning of the ceremonies, Rev. L. M. Lono offered up an invocation, at the conclusion of which Governor Carter arose to make his last public statement as the chief executive officer of the Territory.

The Governor was somewhat nervous, the hand holding the manuscript from which he read trembling slightly, the effect probably of the illness from which he has not as yet fully recovered. The address, which is published in full elsewhere in this issue, was received with applause from every part of the room as the Governor took his seat.

Secretary Mott-Smith then read the commission of Governor issued by President Roosevelt to Walter F. Frear, after which Chief Justice Hartwell, wearing his judicial robe, advanced to the dais and read the oath of office, Mr. Frear answering in a clear, steady voice.

The inaugural address, published on another page, was then read by the

JACK LONDON OFF ON HIS TRAVELS

Snark Given Sendoff by Many Prominent People—Kailua
First Port.

As prompt as if she had been the P. M. S. S. Manchuria, Jack and Mrs. London's ketch Snark left the Bishop wharf at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Christmas Island, via Hawaii Island and the Goodhue, in the presence of about two hundred people. She resembled, then, an ocean liner in the crowd on the wharf as well as the promptness of her movement.

A jolly reception was held aboard the Snark, enduring some forty minutes, before the final whistle was blown and the ketch, under her auxiliary power, with Captain Warren at the wheel, headed out of a difficult mooring, running between the British S. S. Valdivia to starboard and the bark Amy Turner on her port side. The first move was a false start and, if Warren had not been clever, the Snark's foretop would have disagreeably fouled the Amy Turner's bowsprit. A stiff offshore breeze did its best to force the Snark on to the bark but the former's engine behaved well and the ketch backed and cleared. Clear of the slip she upped sail and swung down the harbor, Ewa way, rounding to pass under all canvas by the Channel wharf where Williams, the photographer, stood armed and ready to snap her a few times. Then she glided gracefully through the channel and was soon answering to the swell of the open.

M'KEEVER WINS IN FINAL MATCH

Ewa Man Will Meet Champion
Roth Today on Pacific
Club Courts.

The final match in the tennis tournament for men's singles was won yesterday afternoon by A. M. McKeever of Ewa. He defeated A. J. Lowrey of this city, after four sets of high class tennis, the local man showing better form than was expected. In the first set Lowrey lost four straight games, and then, through good service and passing, won the next six, taking the set. The effort made here was a little too much for the younger player, and he lost the next three sets, becoming very tired towards the end, while McKeever was still in good condition. Lowrey deserves a great deal of credit for the showing he made, and in the years to come should show championship form. If he improves at the rate he has this year.

The challenge match, between A. M. McKeever and Champion Willie Roth, will now take place this afternoon at the courts of the Pacific Tennis Club, commencing at 4:15. As is generally the case, the champion is the favorite, but McKeever has played such a steady game during the present tournament that he has many supporters. Fine tennis is sure to be seen and there should be a large attendance.

HARTFORD, Conn., August 14.—The Pope Manufacturing Company is in the hands of a receiver.

HARTWELL NOW CHIEF JUSTICE

Many Happy Speeches
at Supreme Court Ceremony.

THE formal retirement of Chief Justice Frear and the qualifying of his successor, Chief Justice Hartwell, and the reorganizing of the Supreme Court by the installation of Sidney M. Ballou took place before a crowded courtroom in the Executive Building yesterday morning, the retiring Chief Justice taking occasion of the time to congratulate his successor and his colleague on their advancement. The colleagues of the retiring Chief Justice paid a tribute to him, while the Bar Association presented engrossed resolutions of congratulation to Chief Justice Frear, at the same time expressing their satisfaction at the elevation of Chief Justice Hartwell and the new Associate Justice.

The Supreme Court room was crowded, within the enclosure being a large number of ladies and practically the full membership of the local bar, numbering over fifty. The court was opened in the usual way after the Chief Justice, the two Associate Justices, Mr. Ballou and Federal Judge Dole had entered from the chambers and taken their seats.

FORMALLY RESIGNS.

Chief Justice Frear opened the court by tendering his formal resignation, saying:

It is a matter of general knowledge that I am about to retire from my present office and assume another. When I first took judicial office it seemed conclusive that I should return to private practice after a few years, but changing conditions brought one appointment to another, and under circumstances which made it my duty as well as my pleasure to accept.

Until now I have been on the bench a third of my life. These have been eventful years, under the Monarchy, the Provisional Government, the Republic, the Transition Period and the Territory; years in which the work of the court and of the entire judiciary department has greatly increased; years in which many important and difficult questions have had to be decided; years which have called for much in thought and action under important and new conditions; years also, it must be said, in which the personnel of the court and of the bar has greatly changed.

It has been my privilege to labor on the bench with such men as Chief Justice Frear.
